Are you employed or self-employed?

If you are employed or self-employed, you can deduct eligible moving expenses from employment or self employment income you earn at the new location, including amounts received under the Wage Earner Protection Program in respect of employment at the new work location.

If the moving expenses that you paid in the year of the move are more than the net eligible income (line 19 of Form T1-M) earned at the new location in that same year, you can carry forward and deduct the unused part of those expenses from employment or self-employment income earned at the new location in the following years. You cannot deduct your moving expenses from any other type of income, such as investment income or Employment Insurance benefits, even if you receive this income at the new location.

Did you receive a reimbursement or an allowance?

Did you receive a reimbursement or an allowance for eligible moving expenses (see "Expenses you can deduct" below) that is not included in your income? If yes, you can only deduct moving expenses if you include the amount you received in your income or if you reduce your moving expenses by the amount reimbursed. You may be asked to provide a letter from your employer stating that you were not reimbursed for the moving expenses you are claiming.

Expenses you can deduct

Eligible moving expenses include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ transportation and storage costs (such as packing, hauling, in-transit storage, and insurance) for household effects, including items such as boats and trailers; ▪ travel expenses, including vehicle expenses, meals and accommodation, to move you and members of your household to your new residence ▪ costs for up to 15 days for meals and temporary accommodation near either residence for you and the members of your household ▪ the cost of cancelling a lease for your old residence, except any rental payment for the period during which you occupied the residence. When your old residence is sold as a result of your move, eligible moving expenses also include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ legal or notarial fees for the purchase of the new residence, as well as any taxes paid (other than GST/HST or property taxes) for the transfer or registration of title to the new residence, if you or your spouse or common-law partner sold the old residence; ▪ the cost of selling your old residence, including advertising, notarial or legal fees, real estate commission and mortgage penalty when the mortgage is paid off before maturity. 	Expenses after a year: If you moved, and your moving expenses were paid in a year after the year of your move, you can claim them on your return for the year you paid them against employment or selfemployment income earned at the new location. Incidental costs related to the move: You can claim the cost of changing your address on legal documents, replacing driving licences and non-commercial vehicle permits (not including insurance) and utility hook-ups and disconnections. Costs to maintain your old residence when vacant: You can claim, to a maximum of $5,000, the cost for interest, property taxes, insurance premiums, heat and utilities expenses you paid to maintain your old residence when it was vacant after you moved, and during a period when reasonable efforts were made to sell the home. The costs must have been incurred when your old residence was not ordinarily occupied by you or any other person who ordinarily resided with you at the old residence just before the move. You cannot deduct these costs during a period when the old residence was rented.
